The Punjab Assembly established Punjabi University, Patiala under the Punjab Act No. 35 of 1961. Its foundation stone was laid on June 24, 1962 by Dr. S. Radhakrishnan, the then President of India, who emphasized the vital role of universities in nation-building and democratic growth. Established on April 30, 1962 in the erstwhile princely state of Patiala, the University was founded with the primary objective of promoting Punjabi language, art, and literature. It is the second university in the world to be named after a language, after the Hebrew University of Israel. Since 1965, the University has functioned from its lush green, pollution-free campus. Initially serving a limited jurisdiction, it later expanded into an affiliating university and now caters to nine districts of Punjab. Today, Punjabi University is a major center of higher education and research, offering diverse programs across humanities, sciences, engineering, technology, and languages.
